In Mr. Dulles' absence from the country I am writing in reply to your letter of August 16th concerning the statements Mr. [] has made to you relative to an alleged verbal agreement he entered into with Mr. [] of this office.

Our records reflect that Mr. [] was first referred to this Agency by your office in May 1955. At that time Mr. [] listened at some length to Mr. []'s explanation of how, as the result of some fifteen to twenty years of research in history and languages, he had discovered a new and unique method of predicting accurately the future course of action any given nation would take under any given set of circumstances. Mr. [] then arranged for Mr. [] to make a presentation of his theories, methods and anticipated results to some of our experts here. It was our conclusion at that time and continues to be that Mr. []'s proposals have no practical application to the U. S. intelligence effort.

Mr. [] was informed of this conclusion at the time. He was also informed that the type of research for which he was seeking support was so basic in nature it was unlikely that intelligence agencies of the U. S. government could ever finance him. He was advised that if he needed financial help to continue his research the most likely possibility of such aid would seem to lie in the academic world.

Since his initial contact with CIA, Mr. [] has occasionally been in touch with Mr. [] and has without solicitation forwarded copies of several additional pieces of paper prepared by him. In all of his contacts with this Agency, Mr. [] has consistently been discouraged from expecting any kind of financial support and no commitment, verbal or otherwise, has ever been made to him.

CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE AGENCY

WASHINGTON 25, D. C.

OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR

Honorable John J. Riley
House of Representatives
Washington 25, D. C.

Dear Mr. Riley:

Enclosed is a copy of my letter in reply to Thank you for your letter of August 10th concerning the statements
Mr. [redacted] has made to you relative to an alleged verbal agreement he entered into with Mr. [redacted] of this office.

Our records reflect that Mr. [redacted] was first referred to this Agency by your office in May 1955. At that time Mr. [redacted] listened at some length to Mr. [redacted] explanation of how, as the result of some fifteen to twenty years of research in history and languages, he had discovered a new and unique method of predicting accurately the future course of action any given nation would take under any given set of circumstances. [While somewhat skeptical of Mr. [redacted] claims, Mr.
[redacted] on the chance that Mr. [redacted] might possess something of value to U. S. intelligence, arranged for Mr. [redacted] to make a presentation of his theories, methods and anticipated results to some of our experts here. It was our conclusion at that time and continues to be that Mr. [redacted] s proposals have no practical application to the U. S. intelligence effort.

We were informed of this situation at the time.
Subsequent to Mr. [redacted] s initial contacts with the CIA over two years ago, he was informed that his research work was not of interest to the CIA. He was also advised that the type of research for which he was seeking support was so basic in nature that it was not likely the U. S. government would ever finance him. He was advised that if he needed financial help to continue his research the only possibility of such aid would seem to lie in the academic world.

Since his initial contact with CIA, Mr. [redacted] has occasionally been in touch with Mr. [redacted] and has ~~gratuitously~~ forwarded copies of several additional pieces of paper prepared by him. In all of his contacts with this Agency, Mr. [redacted] has consistently been discouraged from expecting any kind of financial support and no commitment, verbal or otherwise, has ever been made to him.

It was the intelligence agency, of without solicitation.

Possibly it would be desirable to hand-carry this to re-assure Mr. Riley personally that there is no substance to the claim.
